

DoD Ergonomics Working Group NEWS

Issue 46, January 2006

www.ergoworkinggroup.org

Meet the DoD Ergonomics Working Group's new chair and USACHPPM's new Ergonomics Program Manager:

LTC Myrna Callison

LTC Callison brings just the right mix of work experience and academic achievement to her new leadership role in the ergonomics community.

From assistant Occupational Therapy (OT) chief at Frankfurt Army Medical Center to OT chief at both Schofield Barracks and Baynes-Jones Army Community Hospital to ergonomist at the U.S. Army Center for Health Promotion and Preventive Medicine (USACHPPM), LTC Callison has addressed and enhanced the safety and health of Service members for the past 15 years. And for 10 years prior to her military career, she worked as an occupational therapist in the civilian sector.

LTC Callison has a B.S in occupational therapy, an M.A. in organizational management, and is currently a Ph.D. candidate in Industrial and Systems Engineering, Human Factors Option at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University. She has taught numerous 40-Hour Ergonomics Courses to occupational safety and health personnel throughout the Department of Defense and has taught ergonomics and human factors classes at Johns Hopkins University and Virginia Tech.

One of LTC Callison's goals is to establish an open forum to share successes, address concerns, inform and educate. She is available to meet your needs. Call her at 410-436-3928 or email her at myrna.callison@us.army.mil.