BACKGROUND

The Sacramento Air Logistics Center (SM-ALC), McClellan Air Force Base has a mission which is two fold. First, it has world-wide logistics management responsibilities for assigned weapon systems, equipment, and commodity items. Second, it provides maintenance, distribution and contracting services essential to Air Force Logistics.

The Installation Restoration Program (IRP) identifies past activities and procedures that may have impacted the environment or human health. The McClellan IRP has located 258 sites where potentially hazardous chemicals were used, stored or disposed of. Sites at the installation were divided into 11 Operable Units (OU) including a base-wide groundwater OU (GW OU). An Interim Record of Decision (ROD) was signed in FY93 and another in FY95. A number of Interim Actions have been implemented, including removal of 130 Underground Storage Tanks (USTs), installation of a landfill cap, construction of a groundwater treatment plant, demolition of an electroplating facility, installation of a temporary liner, and completion of a soil vapor extraction (SVE) system at three OUs.

WHAT IS A RAB?

The Restoration Advisory Board (RAB) is an advisory board made up of members of the community affected by cleanup activities at McClellan AFB. Members of the board are asked to seek and receive input from the public on cleanup activities. They work with McClellan AFB, and the state and federal regulatory agencies in discussing key issues, reviewing plans and reports, identifying project requirements, and recommending priorities for all cleanup activities.

"The primary objective of the RAB is to foster a true partnership between the community and McClellan AFB"

While involvement with the RAB helps meet community involvement requirements of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act (known as CERCLA), and its amendments, another key objective is to foster a true partnership between the community and McClellan AFB.

This partnership provides information and seeks input and discussion on cleanup activities among the community, regulatory agencies, and the installation.

The RAB holds meetings open to the public as well as an alternating Executive Session at least once a quarter. The RAB meetings provide an opportunity for the community to understand the cleanup process and provide input to the decision makers. It is co-chaired by the Restoration Chief of Environmental Management and a community member selected by the RAB board members.
